

2017-18 Capacity-Building & Civic Engagement Initiative

Strengthening Organizations Serving the Most Vulnerable in the Bay Area's Asian and Pacific Islander Community

We know that grants to support capacity building and civic engagement efforts are a top priority, yet they can also be among the toughest areas to secure funding.

In response to this need, the Asian Pacific Fund - in partnership with the Wallace H. Coulter Foundation, The San Francisco Foundation, and PG&E - is supporting two-year capacity building and civic engagement grants. The capacity building efforts we are supporting include leadership development, strategic planning, strengthening fundraising, and building technology infrastructure.

We are also supporting civic engagement strategies designed to move grantees' constituents one step further along the path toward increasing their civic participation. While Asian and Pacific Islanders are the fastest-growing racial group in America, we know that effectively advocating for our rights requires the power of our collective action and voice.

Our Grantees

Center for Asian American Media (CAAM) (San Francisco)

Chinese for Affirmative Action (San Francisco)

Chinatown YMCA (San Francisco)

Chinese Newcomers Service Center (San Francisco)

Donaldina Cameron House (San Francisco)

Friends of Children with Special Needs (Fremont and San Jose)

Gum Moon (San Francisco)

J-Sei (San Francisco)

Kimochi (San Francisco)

Korean American Community Services (San Jose)

Korean Community Center of the East Bay (Oakland)

Narika (Berkeley)

Oakland Asian Cultural Center (Oakland)

Vietnamese American Community Center of the East Bay (Oakland)

Photo Credit: East Bay Asian Youth Center

Photo Credit: Korean Community Center of the East Bay

Photo Credit: Chinese for Affirmative Action